Frentiss, with his division, occupied the front on the left, two or three regiments being stationed nex to the plektes, and in the rear was Goo. Sharmond.

In planning the attack tion. Johnston or Beauregard, for it is not certainty known, which had command, had acted upon the trac Napoleouse principle, to attack each division of our forces separately, and annihilate it before a junction could be formed. The first results of the attack showed the wisdom of his plans; but the ganboats and the unfluch-ing bravery of our troops, spoiled his well de-vised schemes, and the arrival of our reinforcements has well-nigh annihilated his army.

In the number of troops engaged, the obstinate valor displayed on both sides, the terrible loss of human life, and the commanding results that are likely to follow, this a unquestionably the greatest battie of the war. The public will await the details, alike deeply melaneboly and most glerious with the most intense interest.

Dispatches received here this evening, fully credited in military circles, assays as that Albert Sidney Johnston, acknowledged to be by far the sidest commander among the rebels, was found dead upon the field. Johnson, the bogus Governor of Kentucky, is a prisoner.

Fearing from the si-lence lest some treachery might be meditated, it was determined to anchor in the stream and wait until day light before making any further movements. I retired to rest, but fore we had been blasing into each other's face, and now, without the loss of a single man, we are lying under the batteries. If the

The De Soto will, it is understood, be run henceforth by Capt. Carroll of the Illinois. With the situation of Island No. 10 all of your readers are by this time well acquainted. It comprises about seven hundred acres of most fertile soil. About two-thirds of it is very heavily timbered with cotton woods, elms and maples, some of the trees being of immense size. The head of the island which makes a very blunt angle around which the current rushes with terrific rapidity, has been cleared for a distance of five or six hundred free back from the river. About the centre of the island is a farm of 250 acres, devoted mostly to corn. A large peach and apple orchard attectives from the entre to the foot of the island, at present in full blossom, and forming stratches from the centre to the foot of the island, at present in full blossom, and forming a beautiful contrast with the emerald that of tree and herbage. There is but one house upon the island, a neat white cottage with a few negro hats grouped about. The entire banks of the island, excepting directly at the point, are high and bold, and only schable by earthern stairs, which have been cut in two or three places. They are rapidly washing away and the trees falling over into the river. Although upon the Island but a fews hours, I witnessed no leas than ten heavy land sildes. At the present rate, in a short the the outire island, like many of its numerical predecessors, must entirely disappear, mark of the mannerical predecessors, must entirely disappear,

THE BATTRIES.

The batteries upon the Island are four in number, and all lecated upon the right bank. They are all built of and bags, piled ap clearly and heavily, with earth slopes and wide, deep ditches. Upon the left shore a plat of ground had been laid out for a three gun batter but a fracently absended as in oracticable. ground had been hid out for a three gun battery, but apparently abandoued as impracticable. The first battery is located upon the headf about fifty feet in the zear of the batk. It mounts six gens at present, four thirty-t-rea, and two sixty-fours, and a splendid twenty-four gound rife. It originally mounted seven guns, but on the 19th ut, one of them, a thirty-two points rife carrying a one hundred and twenty-fell points confical shell, and named Lady Folk, exploded. The hungs fragments are still lying about the battery, and the shall-seried earling about the Cady Folk which exploded at Columbus; and after the bate of its namesake, it stills of Lady Belmont was changed to its present one. It is a carrious coincidence that it should hay mat a similar fate.

I should have mentioned in the proper con-nection above, that among the rebel prisoners is Lieut. Rufus J. Polk of the Nelson Artillery, a nephew of the Rev. General Polk.

There are seven batteries upon the main shore. The first or the Kentucky battery, which was spiked by Col. Roberts, mounted six guns. The second six; the third five; the fourth four; the fifth five; the sixth six. The seventh was a large fort some distance back from the river, surrounded by a splendid ditch, and enclosing a hure magazine. It mounted two sity-fours pointing inland, Nearly one-third of the guns in these batteries were rified twenty fours and thirty-two, the balance, thirty-twos and sixty-fours. Bealdon those mounted, there were twenty guns which had never been mounted, and were lying inside the works. In the rear of the fourth oatery was a fine rified field piece, or rather the remmants of one. It had wayloded, and the fragments harded in every direction. In the Kentucky battery were found two mortars which are veritable curiosities. They are of bronze, about a food in length, and would carry, I should think a twenty pound shell. Nearthe vent is an English crown surmounting the laseription "G. R. H." Mortars dailing back to the time of George Second are indeed valuable as relies, and when placed beside our levintants carrying two hundred and twenty-four pound shells, are very suggestive of the march of improvement in the military world.

There are upon this shore several immense belies and rared of improvement in the military world.

There are upon this shore several immense the ground and distabel into sparinents. They are conducted to cannot with a mental of the provement their way, be safe to say that in connection with the ordinance, they are worth over half a million dollars.

There were, from the best estimates I can get, about 5.00 troops on the main shore, comprising the 4th, 5th, 46th and 46th Tennessee; 18th Alabama, and a Mississippi regiment, whose number I have not ascertained. It is sufficient that they rejoiced in the static nume of "Mississippi Devils." Gen. McCowen was originally in command of the post. Some four weeks ago he was removed for evacuating New Madrid. Since that time the following Generals—all Brigadiers—have accessively held command Gens. Mackell was at one time Gen. Sidouy Johnston's Adjustant. Gen. Albert S. Johnson is certainly killed. Persons are here who saw his body, and who heard the fact commented on throughout the camp. Gen. Bragg is reported killed and John C. Breckinridge a prisoner, but unreliable.

Provisional Governor Johnson of Kentucky, is mortsly wounded and a prisoner. It is also reported that Gen. Prenties, who was token prisoner the first day, escaped in the confusion of the retreat the next day.

Our total loss is killed, wounded and missing is about 7,000, and this is the estimate of the military commanders who were in the organization. Of these about 2,000 were taken prisoners, and the balance were killed and wounded, in the usual proportion. The river, meanwhile, was full of steamers, capable of transporting two or three divisions per week from Alexandria to Old Point. Pub-lic opinion was generally centered on Fred-erickaburg as the point of attack—that being the shortest route to Richmond and having the advantages of a railroad, which, even if the rebels should tear up the track in their flight, could be rebuilt as fast as the army could as could be rebuilt as fast as the army could ad vance. The secessionists, however, declared that the army was going to Old Point before a soldier had embarked. A near relative of R. M. T. that Gen. McClellan had an eye to great political as well as milliary results to follow from his movements in the field. It would appear that the political results have much outwelphed the milliary ones up to this time. The General's appeal to Cod. Gooding's regiment certainly indicated a deaire to carry on the war without the painful necessity of killing or getting killed. It is hardly to be supposed that Co. G. 's regiment could go into hattle without somebody getting killed, yet the General said he did not think such a sacrifice would be necessary. The sentiment was truly human to everybody, except hat hat payed the public will prefer that of Gen. C. F. Smith at Fort Donelson, who, meeting a regiment panic-stricken and retreating from some unexpected states, rode to their front and shouted slond, "D—a you, you volunteered to fight, now fight" And fight they did right gioriously till the day was their's.

In looking a little further into the subject I have come across a pamphlet of ninety-two pages, by Sir Howard Douglas, entitled "A Posteriyt to the Section on Iron Defenses, contained in the 5th Edition of 'Nava Gunnery' in answer to the erroneous principles set forth by the Reviewer in the Quarterly Review for October, 1890.—London, John Murray, Albermarle street, 1861." Sir Howard Commence by complaining that the article in the Quarterly calls him "prejudiced." "and Lapita," in the district of angulated investiced ships of war—diameter. 19 feet 4 inches"—which appears to be a Monitor in the rough, the tower intended to be turned by hand, instead of steam. Sir Howard then proceeds to show that the plan is wholly impracticable—that it won't float, and if it does show it won't turn. Surely the reviewer was not far wrong when he put "nothing like leather" into Sir Howard's awful month.

In the day time their passage would have been disputed by the fort. They landed in the town without opposition, or without finding so much as guard to challenge their approach. In the morning the citizens found their houses guarded by Union troops and the town in their, possession. The visit, however, was by no means ill taken. The head men came out and mest Major Allen and tendered to him and his troops the freedom of the city. They were invited to their houses, and every evidence of good will was exhibited by the people towards the new concre. On the whole their reception was courteous and gratifying. They declared they had never given in any adhesion to the rebel government, and were good Union men. Large numbers have daily come to the Major's head-quarters to take the oath of allegiance.

St. Louis. April 10.—A letter to the Republicas from Fort Union, New Mexico, dated March 23d, says the column there is breaking up camp for a forward movement, south towards the rebels. The Texast army is occupying a strong position in the vicinity of Albuquerque, one hundred and seventy unless couth of that department, about midway between Fort Union and Fort Casig, where Cet Casigh was at that accounts with 900 seguiars. The Texass intend to march upon either column as they leave their stronghold at Fort Union or Fort Oraig, and by their superior force, which is estimated at 2,400 strong, and twenty-one pieces of artility, whip one and fice about and assault the other column before they can form a junction, and thus cut the Union froops up in detail.

The letter states that it appears that Col. Stongh and Col. Canby, of department commanders, are not acting in concert, and that the present movement may not provessorcess follows: The following special dispatch was received this evening by the Espaddeon:

THE CITY. PARSON BROWSLOW IN CHICAGO RECEPTION IN CHICAGO.

AT THE BOARD OF TRADE.

It being understood that the Parson would make his appeasance on 'Chango at 13 o'clock, long before that hour arrived, large numbers of our clitices, members of the Board and others, began to gather there, and by noon the standard and the comments of the former than the comments of the standard the comments are not to the standard net has entitled him. At 12 o'clock he Parson's appearance was greeted with arty applause, and when order was restored, ephen Clary, Esq., made a few appropriate troductory remarks; after which, Mayor among arose and said:

tinct and emphatic enunciation, every person in the vast crowd could easily hear and un-anng, where the ... He was a astional man; and no sentiments in the South that he was rilling to promutigate in the North; and in the North that he would not protupon the house-top in the Southern as In 1898, the speaker supported John cy Adams for the Presidency, and for that neutred the hatted of many of his the abolition of sisvery, the speaker al-ied him in that particular; for though solitionist, he had always contended Congressman's constituents had the potition that body for swything they sire. He had supported that emission, Henry Clay; and when he died, he lilingly have voted for Clay's last pair the direct justice to pronounce a little to the angle of the colors on the concern the colors of the angle of

At seven o'clock last evening, haif an hour before the time set down for the lecture to commence, Metropolitan Hall was filled to overflowing. The class of people that went to listen to the Parson was the best of the city, the audience being largely composed of ladies. Every scrap of sitting of standing room in that large hall was occupied. We never saw a more orderly house than was presented on this occasion.

It was fifteen minutes to eight o'clock, when Parson Brownlow, preceded by Mr. Bowon, President of the Young Men's Association, came upon the stage and was briefly introresument of the Young Men's Association, came upon the stage and was briefly introduced to his hearers. The speaker was received with a hearty burst of applause. After some apologies as to the condition of his throat, which was evidently impaired by the ravages of a broughla affection, Mr. Brownlow said:

Northpan south.

Give us the Union, at all events! Let every other institution go to the devil—or any other individual. Applause. This may seem like saying a good deal, and like taking a strong position for a Southern man. But I have said nothing I have not said before to Southern auden ces in the Southern States.

I have fought Andrew Johnson of Tennessee, systematically, perseveringly and unitringly, for the hast twenty-five years of my somewhat eventful life. He has scored me on every stamp in the State of Tennessee, and I have paid him back to the best of my ability. But honors with us are easy. [Laughter.] We take each other by the hand now as brethren. [Applause.] Now I will fight for him and under him—engaged as we are in the same cause, against the same vile foe to God and man, and especially to our e intry. [Applause.] I have always been a Union man. I commenced my political eareer in Tennessee in 1898. Having mentioned the name of Old Hickory, I take pleasure in saying that, while I opposed him in his political aspirations, Jeckson was always a patriot and a true lover of the country.

About twelve months ago a stream of

Their order was good at Fort Donesson. [Cheers.]
Temeessee never voted heraelf out of the Union by a fair vote. In February, when a fair shake was had at the polls, the secesh made no show at all. We best them so badly that they have not got over it yet. On the previous election, ten thousand troops—wharf-rats and low-fluing seavengers out of the South—were sent to us, and told when they got into Eastern Tennessee they must show us no quarter. They carried the election them by lottimidation. If I know anything of any Scate, it is of Tennessee, and I apeak within bounds when I say she is loyal. When Gov. Solinson issues a proclamation; when these thieves are thrown off, Tennessee will not be breeff light be Union by more than force.

In that dirty prison but two-thirds of our company could he down, and there was neither bench, chair, block or other thing to sit or lay upon. A wooden bunket and a couple of the caps, out of which we drank, were all the furniture we had. As a consequence, many

The sufferings of the inmstes of the jall wer horrible. The food they were supplied with was rank and unwholesome. I got permis sion to receive meals from my family, other wise I should not have been able to live though my confinement. One wonger my

It. My guards said if they dared to enter the cars, they would blow their brains out, and they backed them off, and the train departed. At Pshelbyville, fiftylwe miles from Mashville, we left the relirosal terminus and got into buggies and came to Nashville. I felt like a bird out of a cage, and gave praise to God when I was in sight of Abe Lincoin's pickets. Finnily I met Gen. Wood of Krintaky—glorious fellow. I was unable to say anything in reply to his reception. He landed me simost in Abraham's bosom. (Cheers.) From there I came by Indianapolis to Cincinnati, and I am here. One thing I regret. They have my firmilly—my wife and five children—hostages for my good behavior. They are capable of anything. But I hope they may not injure the family. All the ambition I have is to go back to Knoxville with new press and type—my old office having been all destroyed—to resurrect the Knoxville Whig. I want to send out the news that the devile have fied or retired from that region of the country. [Cheers.]

Mr. Brownlow having exhausted himself, was followed by Gen. S. F. Carr. who inter-

the assemblage broke up. A special meeting of the council was held yesterday afternoon, present: — Aldermen Bottaford, Joy, Tittaworth, Myers, Holden, Sal-

FIRE ON THE NORTH SIBE, -A fire was discovered yesterday forenson at eleven o'clock in a two-story frame dwelling house and store, corner of Chicago Avenue and Sedg-wick street, and occupied by John Flannery. The furniture and property was removed. Damage, $500. Insured $300 in the Hartford Company. While the fire was in progress a part of the roof of the house and a chimney fell inward, knocking down and severely cut ting on the head Wm. Mullen, a fireman on the steamer Liberty. He crawied out from the ruins, as smoky and dusty as a huge sala-mander, shook himself once or twice, and walked away, declaring he was "not badly lajured." The blow would have killed nine
